LIVINGSTON — Condemned inmate Patrick Knight is ready to die, and die laughing.

Knight, 39, convicted of a fatal shooting of his neighbor almost 16 years ago outside Amarillo, has been considered dozens of jokes he's been making in recent weeks since drawing attention for his desire to make a joke as part of his final journey from the Texas death row gurney.

He's scheduled for lethal injection Tuesday evening in Huntsville.

But with Texas the national leader in capital punishment, he said he decided to solicit jokes from his buddies on death row to help them deal with their stress.
